

As a military government officer in Japan after World War II, in the public information section, I saw the danger in consolidated ownership of broadcasting and other media. In Japan, it was the militarists who gained control. But any consolidation is a thre